Council Kicks Off 2026 Budget; Discusses Future Budget Process

by Maurice Crawford

On Monday, March 24, the Greenbelt City Council heard a report from the city's auditor of last year's budget and began the Fiscal Year (FY) 2026 budget process with a presentation by the City Manager Josué Salmerón.

The recent audit of FY 2024, conducted by Mitchell Titus, gave the city a clean bill of health. Daniel Kenney, engagement partner for Mitchell Titus, gave a presentation on their findings. No deficiencies or weaknesses were found in the audit for the period ending June 30, 2024.

Mayor Emmett Jordan expressed gratitude to the team supplying the data with special thanks to City Treasurer Bertha Gaymon.

2026 Budget Presentation

Salmerón went over the proposed FY 2026 budget for the city and discussed the changing budget projections due to the current atmosphere in the federal government and the state's constrained budget. (For the recent FY 2026 budget worksession see page 8). Currently, the total budget for 2026 stands at $52.5M and is composed of $40M in the general fund, $7.4M in capital projects, and nearly $5M in other funds and supports 234.5 full-time equivalent (FTE) positions. The 2026 general fund estimates revenues will be $40,221,600 and expenses will be $40,215,900 with a positive difference of $5,700. Compared to last year's budget, revenues are expected to increase by 5.76 percent and expenses by 5.69 percent. In addition, the number of positions will be reduced by 13.2 FTE which includes both unfunded and vacant positions plus having some positions funded by American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) money (changes in ARPA rules have allowed this shift). Also, the Recreation and Parks Department will have a reduction of $129,500 (or 2 percent) compared to last year's budget through reduced staff hours, unfilled positions, fewer uniforms/equipment and other actions.

Women of Greenbelt

Fiona O'Brien, 13, Joins U.S. Acrobatic Gymnastics Team

by Diya Shah

At just 13 years old, Fiona O'Brien of Greenbelt is already balancing more than most: school, international travel and a rigorous gymnastics schedule that would make even the most dedicated athletes sweat. This year, all that work paid off. Fiona was officially selected to be on the 2025 U.S. Acrobatic Gymnastics National Team – an incredible honor for a gymnast of her age and a major step forward in her already impressive gymnastics journey.

"It's exciting ... it's really cool," said Fiona about making the team. Currently an eighth grader at the Key School in Annapolis, Fiona has a packed schedule ahead: she'll travel to Arizona in April for a national team training camp, compete in Canada in May, head to Bulgaria in June for the International Acro Cup and just weeks later, return to the U.S. to compete at the 2025 USA Gymnastics Championships in Rhode Island.

That busy competition schedule comes on the heels of a standout performance at last year's National Championships in Minneapolis, where Fiona and her teammates Gabby Zsakany and Juliet Hanks medaled in every event (see the July 10, 2024 issue). They placed gold in Balance, bronze in Dynamic, bronze in Finals and gold in All-Around, placing them just 0.08 points ahead of the bronze-winning team in a nail-bitingly close competition.

Despite the significance of the accomplishment, Fiona and her mom, Jamie Krauk, speak about it quite humbly. "It's been a steady progression,"

Brush Fire Burned Across Acres Of BARC Fields Behind GES

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

A brush fire broke out at multiple locations in Beltsville Agricultural Research Center fields and the North Woods in Greenbelt on Sunday, March 30.

At 3:16 p.m., on Sunday, March 30, Prince George's County Fire Department (PGFD) responded to a large brush fire reported to be outside 162 Research Road, one of the homes on Research Road that back onto the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center's (BARC) fields and the woods there. Residents reported the fire was spreading in fields behind Greenbelt Elementary School (GES), through BARC and toward Powder Mill Road. Fire department responders set up a large staging area at GES on Ridge Road. Firefighters also cut a hole in the fence between Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) and BARC property to access the fire and ran hoses along the fence on the GHI side to another access point. Montgomery County Fire and Rescue Services, as well as U.S. Park Police and Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Forestry Services joined PGFD in their response.

The first fire in the area behind the school actually occurred Saturday, March 29. A resident on Laurel Hill Road called in the fire between 8 and 9 p.m. when it was visible from their

by Maurice Crawford

On Monday, March 24, the Greenbelt City Council voted not to approve the installation of two new bus stops along Crescent Road, which means Metrobuses P20 and P21 (the new designations for the G14 and G12 buses) will follow the same routes within the city as they do today rather than the altered routes planned by the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA). The lively and long discussion began with a review of the Better Bus process by City Planner Jaime Fearer and the input provided by the city and its residents.

The main objection to the Better Bus plan was routing of the P20/P21 buses along Westway rather than Gardenway (which is the current bus route). However, residents were concerned about safety, accessibility, noise and the loss of on-street parking. These and other comments were taken into consideration by the WMATA Board who made its decision on the routes in November 2024. The Better Bus Plan is to take effect on June 30 and WMATA needs to update maps and other information regarding the changes. At the council meeting WMATA asked the city to install two accessible and Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) compliant bus stops along Crescent Road to accommodate the new routes.

More on Energy Town Hall

I would like to make three comments about information in the March 13 News Review issue.

The first two are in reference to the article on page one entitled, Utility Bills Town Hall Skirts Energy Cost Woes.

Readers should understand that Pepco does not produce much of its own electricity but rather has to buy it from the grid. They make their profit by selling electricity at a rate higher than what they buy it for.

I asked whether the EmpowerMD law assumed that the utilities would eat the cost of the program rather than passing on the large fees to the consumer. The Pepco representative didn't have an answer for that.

I believe I also asked why only about 7 percent of our electricity is coming from renewable energy sources whereas the 2022 law, Climate Solutions Now Act calls for 50 percent renewable energy by 2030 and 100 percent renewable energy (net zero) by 2045. We are nowhere near reaching those goals. Again, no answer was given.

Finally, I would like to make an addition to the box on page 8 entitled Absence of Choice that accompanies the town hall article. I did a little research and was surprised to find that Marylanders no longer are able to sign up for wind energy through Clean Choice or WGL.

However, Maryland residents in the Pepco catchment area still have the option to sign up for Community Solar meaning they subscribe to a nearby solar array and only pay for the amount of electricity they use. For example, Neighborhood Sun offer a 5 to 10 percent discount off the Pepco rate. For those people considered low to moderate income, they are offered a discount of 25 percent off the Pepco rate.

An Unexpected Fire Drill

Walking the dogs Monday morning, the day after the wild-fire behind Greenbelt Elementary School, we noticed several smoldering logs re-ignite, flaming up in the brisk morning breeze. Is that a problem or not? Greenbelt police didn't know, instead referring us to the Prince George's County non-emergency service number, which is just a recording. That wasn't reassuring – a sudden wind shift could spread flames right back toward Greenbelt houses!

So we called 911. Eventually, 30 minutes after the first call, a fire truck from College Park arrived at Greenbelt Elementary. The firefighter explained that State of Maryland firefighters had jurisdiction over the burn site, and were actively monitoring it. That was reassuring. But couldn't the Greenbelt police or county 911 service have just told us that from the start?

Maryland may not be as prone to wildfires as western states. But Sunday's fire in Greenbelt shows one can happen here too. A drought combined with high

The Friend

The comfortable, solitary New York life of writer and teacher Iris (Naomi Watts) is thrown into disarray after her closest friend and mentor (Bill Murray) dies suddenly and bequeaths her his beloved 150 lb. Great Dane. The regal yet intractable beast, named Apollo, immediately creates practical problems for Iris, from furniture destruction to eviction notices, as well as more existential ones, his looming presence constantly reminding her of her friend's problematic choices in both life and death. Yet as Iris finds herself unexpectedly bonding with the animal, she begins to come to terms with her past, her lost friend and her own creative inner life.

Death of a Unicorn

A father (Paul Rudd) and daughter (Jenna Ortega) accidentally hit and kill a unicorn while en route to a weekend retreat, where his billionaire boss (Richard E. Grant) seeks to exploit the creature's miraculous curative properties.

The Penguin Lessons

The film was inspired by the true story of a disillusioned Englishman who went to work in a school in Argentina in 1976. Expecting an easy ride, Tom (Steve Coogan) discovers a divided nation and a class of unteachable students. However, after he rescues a penguin from an oil-slicked beach, his life is turned upside down. Said critic Neely Swanson of the Beverly Hills Courier, "The true star of this tale, the one who's in the title of the film, is the penguin. Never pass up an opportunity to interact with penguins, and this one is no different."

Sullivan's Travels

In this screwball comedy, successful movie director John L. Sullivan (Joel McCrea), convinced he won't be able to film his ambitious masterpiece until he has suffered, dons a hobo disguise and sets off on a journey, aiming to "know trouble" first-hand. When all he finds is a train ride back to Hollywood and a beautiful blonde companion (Veronica Lake), he redoubles his efforts, managing to land himself in more trouble than he bargained for when he loses his memory and ends up a prisoner on a chain gang.

Greenbelt Museum Welcomes Spring

Join the Greenbelt Museum to welcome spring on Sunday, April 6. Come by the grounds of the Museum house (10-A and 10-B Crescent) between 2 and 4 p.m. and plant a seedling to take home. The Museum will have a small selection of seedlings including flowers, vegetables and herbs. All supplies will be provided, one seedling per person, while they last. No pre-registration is required.

In addition to planting, visitors are encouraged to take a free quick tour of the Museum house to see spring decorations and the start of a small demonstration victory garden on the grounds. Greenbelters would have gardened for victory in their allotment plots, not in their yards, but many households across the United States did have gardens growing just outside of their doors, as the Museum’s garden demonstrates.

This will be the Museum’s second victory garden. The first was in 2011 in conjunction with the exhibit, Green from the Start: A History of Gardening in Greenbelt. To learn more about exactly where Greenbelters gardened, view the recent lecture given by Stephen Oetken, Unearthing Greenbelt’s Historic Gardens now available on YouTube.

The Museum house will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. and the seedling activity will run from 2 to 4 p.m. If it rains, the activity will take place under a tent.

Greenbelt STEM Enthusiasts Hike Historic D.C. Boundary

by Lesley Kash

On Sunday morning, March 23, six Greenbelt residents followed the original 1791-1792 Washington, D.C., boundary as they hiked the second leg of a 10-mile Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (STEM) hike. Michael Chesnes, Coleman Rose, Al Goyburu, Jessica Forshee, Patrick Forshee and Lawrence Hawkins climbed, forded streams and navigated rough terrain. They were on the hunt for Washington’s original Boundary Stones, finding some behind fences on government installations, others obscured on private property.

The Residence Act of 1790 authorized President (and skilled engineer) George Washington to establish a national capital. He appointed surveyor Major Andrew Ellicott, who in turn asked Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson to also hire Benjamin Banneker, an accomplished surveyor, astronomer and landowner of African descent. Assisted by 75 to 100 men, they mapped and marked the District’s boundaries.

To honor this historic accomplishment and highlight the role of STEM in American history, the Guy R. Hawkins Center for STEM launched this hiking initiative to explore and document the creation of Washington, D.C.

All are welcome to join them in celebration.

Contemplative Prayer Group Meets Tuesdays

A contemplative prayer group meets on Tuesdays at the Greenbelt Community Church, United Church of Christ, 1 Hillside Road, from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. This gathering is a time to pray in silence for oneself, others and the world. It nurtures inner and outer peace and reinforces the oneness of all people and creation.

The format for this group is an opening introduction, 30 minutes of silence and then some sharing. All are welcome to attend from all denominations and faith traditions. For more information, email Patience Robbins at patience.robbins@gmail.com.

Luminis’ Doctors Hospital Celebrates 50 Years of Care

On Saturday, April 5, Luminis Health Doctors Hospital will host its 50th Anniversary Golden Gala, an evening of celebration and tribute to the hospital’s legacy of providing care since 1975. The event will bring together healthcare leaders, community advocates and supporters to honor the hospital’s legacy while raising funds to expand services, advance health equity and eliminate disparities.

Baby Shower

Luminis will hold a Community Baby Shower on Saturday, April 12, from noon to 4 p.m. The free event will provide resources, education and support for expectant and new mothers in Prince George’s County, including expert-led panel discussions on gestational diabetes, preeclampsia, postpartum depression, nutrition during and after pregnancy, and lactation.

“We want mothers and loved ones to feel empowered about their health during pregnancy,” said Temi Oshiyoye, Luminis Health’s director of Community Health Improvement.

As part of its on-going commitment to maternal health, Luminis Health has opened an ob-gyn clinic in Greenbelt and launched CenteringPregnancy®, which offers group sessions for expectant mothers and personalized consultations with ob-gyns and midwives.

“Prince George’s County has a maternal mortality rate that is twice the national average, and this is simply unacceptable,” said Deneen Richmond, president of Luminis Health Doctors Community Medical Center. “Luminis Health is taking bold steps to address these disparities by expanding access to quality prenatal and postnatal care, educating families and advocating for systemic change.”

Anticipated to open in 2028, the new state-of-the-art women’s health center on the hospital’s Lanham campus is expected to welcome approximately 2,000 babies each year once fully operational.

This article is based on a press release from Luminis.

Congratulations to 13-year-old Fiona O’Brien on having been selected for the 2025 U.S. Acrobatic Gymnastics National Team.

PUBLIC STATEMENT REGARDING PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY FIRE/EMS SUMMER STAFFING PLAN FOR GREENBELT VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT

Greenbelt, MD - The City of Greenbelt is disappointed in the County's decision to reassign 24 career personnel from Greenbelt Station 835 on July 1, resulting in the removal of all career personnel from our Station. County Fire Chief Tiffany Green and County leadership ordered the redeployment of 55 career firefighters from Berwyn Heights, Greenbelt, Bunker Hill, and Bowie Station. We are gravely concerned with the impact in response times of emergencies in Greenbelt and our surrounding areas.

Greenbelt will continue to work in tandem with College Park and Berwyn Heights alongside County leadership in addressing our concerns and fighting for the City of Greenbelt.

second-story window. The fire department responded and worked in the area for a while Saturday evening, reported residents. Then, the large brush fire in the same area broke out at approximately 3:16 p.m. the following day.

On Sunday afternoon, residents noted significant smoke, particularly along Research Road, Ridge Road and Laurel Hill Road. Helicopters and numerous emergency services vehicles responded to the fire that afternoon.

At 9:17 p.m. on Sunday evening, PGFD reported that the fire was contained and nearly extinguished and units were leaving the scene, with crews remaining to check for hot spots. DNR personnel remained on the scene overnight. There were no injuries and the fire didn't extend to homes or structures, they said via a social media post. It's estimated the fire spread over 10 acres.

On Monday morning, March 31, resident Jeff Lemieux was walking his dogs near the burned area on BARC and noticed several smoldering logs re-ignite. He called 911 and told the News Review that it took 30 minutes from his call until the first engine responded, which was a College Park engine (see his letter to the editor this week). Other residents similarly reported smoldering and flames, which they captured on video on Monday.

The News Review reached out to PGFD on Monday and Tuesday with a request for comment and questions about any indication of a cause of the fire and about the response to it. They did not respond by press time.

winds could make large parts of Greenbelt vulnerable, not just the historic center.

Are Greenbelt Police, Public Works, County Firefighters and State of Maryland fire commanders coordinated? Are notification systems in place for residents in case of an evacuation order? Hopefully, Sunday's fire will help us sharpen our response and communications, and reassure us that we're ready in case a bigger wildfire threatens.

Jeff Lemieux

Fire in the Forest

We watch on the news so many stories of devastating fires out West and even now in the South but who would expect it in our Greenbelt?

On Saturday night, March 29, our friends and neighbors Rob and Suzanne were out on their back porch facing the woods behind Greenbelt Elementary School. They noticed a light, which got brighter, and realized it was a fire. They called and the fire truck pulled out onto the playing field behind the school and promptly extinguished a relatively small area fire.

The next day they came home in the early afternoon and saw smoke and flames near the same spot, but farther into the woods that adjoin the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) property. They called again but this time the fire quickly spread due to windy conditions and very dry ground. It had gone into BARC property and spread to the woods behind 15 Court Laurel Hill Road.

Rob and I went down to the fire perimeter with shovels and put out some of the flames advancing toward his house as the first of the firefighters showed up to assess the situation. A helicopter also came out to survey the rapidly spreading fire.

Numerous fire trucks soon followed, coming from Beltsville and Bladensburg and other cities nearby. They came from Anne Arundel County, Sandy Spring in Montgomery County and from Accokeek in Prince George's County. One out-of-town vehicle was a narrow truck designed to penetrate the wooded area for access.

A very long fire hose was set up by about a dozen firefighters to pump from the hydrant at the foot of Research Road. This did the job and eventually put out the fire.

They were still at it in the dark at about 8:30 p.m. making sure all the fire was out. Their diligence and dedication are much appreciated.

My family has lived in Greenbelt for almost 50 years and this is the first forest fire we have witnessed here. Let's hope it's the last.

Council Approves Money for Retiree Subsidy, Cemetery Master Plan, More

by Maurice Crawford

The Greenbelt City Council met on Monday, March 24 and started off with a presentation from the county’s Office of Human Rights. They then approved $65,000 for a retiree prescription subsidy and a $68,800 contract for a Historic Preservation Master Plan for Greenbelt’s historic cemeteries. Council also reviewed the budget for Fiscal Year (FY) 2026 (see article on page 1), voted down new bus stops, effectively blocking WMATA’s new route plan for Greenbelt (see page 1), and heard legislative updates from Annapolis.

Prescription Subsidy

Council unanimously agreed to appropriate $65K from the city’s General Fund reserve to the Retiree Prescription Subsidy line item for FY 2025 (6 to 0 with Councilmember Amy Knesel absent). This is needed to cover increases in retiree prescription benefit costs that exceed the originally appropriated amount. Councilmember Silke Pope noted that the amount subsidized will grow in the future and asked how to best plan for this. Salmerón and staff will take a closer look at this expense and how to best manage it.

Historic Cemeteries

Council approved a contract of $68.8K to develop a Master Preservation Plan for the Hamilton, Turner and Walker cemeteries in Greenbelt. The contract was approved by a 5 to 1 vote with Councilmember Rodney Roberts opposed and Knesel absent. The amount includes a $35,000 matching grant from the Maryland Heritage Areas Authority. Under this contract Johnson, Mirmiran & Thompson, Inc. (JMT) will create an inventory database and maintenance guide that will help the city prioritize restoration and maintenance needs. They will also conduct an archeological, architectural, structural, site and landscape evaluation of each cemetery.

Mayor Emmett Jordan queried Terri Hruby, director of Planning & Community Development, regarding opportunities for public engagement. She replied that they plan to hold public meetings about the project.

Roberts asked what the city would get for its money. Hruby said it would include an assessment of the conditions of each cemetery, boundaries, geographic information system layers of the areas plus recommendations on preservation and maintenance. Roberts opposed funding the project and felt the money could be better used elsewhere.

Legislative Updates

Darrell Carrington of Carrington and Associates gave an update on Maryland legislative actions in Annapolis. The State of Maryland is trying to manage a $3.3B shortfall in its budget without increases in sales or property taxes. While some savings have been found, a shortfall of this magnitude will mean a reduction in core services provided by the state. There will be a change in income tax for those earning more than $500K and there will probably be a Special Session later this year in October.

One significant shift is that President Trump said that the new FBI headquarters would be built in Washington, D.C., rather than in Greenbelt.

Jordan moved that council write a letter of support for HB1506 which would increase from $1,000 to $5,000 the maximum amount of a criminal fine or municipal infraction that may be imposed by a municipality. (Editor’s note: The city recently levied the maximum allowable fines on the management companies of Parkway Gardens and Crescent Pointe apartments, which left residents without heat for months (see the January 29 issue).) The motion passed 5 to 1 with Roberts opposed.

Councilmember Jenni Pompei made a motion that council write a letter of support for HB767 which would require that landlords give an evictee 10 days’ notice, and another 10 days to get their property if they are evicted. The motion passed 5 to 1 with Pope opposed because she felt it’s already difficult and expensive for a landlord to evict someone and there are enough protections in place for tenants.

County Human Rights Office

Also at the meeting, Tiana Davis, outreach specialist, provided a brief overview of the county’s Office of Human Rights. It has four divisions: (1) Investigations examines alleged acts of discrimination in employment, housing, public accommodations and other areas, (2) Human trafficking identifies and recovers victims plus prosecutes traffickers, (3) Language Access Compliance ensures that materials are provided in residents’ preferred languages and (4) Education and Outreach. The office’s website is princegeorgescountymd.gov/departments-offices/human-rights.

Jordan suggested that to reach a wider audience Davis should attend the next Four Cities meeting scheduled for April 24.

Office of Planning described the process WMATA used to come to their decisions. He reiterated that the goal is to provide the best service possible and streamline the process by examining in a comprehensive manner bus service within Prince George’s County (including TheBus) in order to provide efficient service. Jones also stated that if the city does not fund the new bus stops then “... the service [routes] would remain the same.”

Council Questions

Mayor Emmett Jordan was appreciative of the overview but wanted to know when the public would learn more about the county bus plans. Jones clarified that they anticipate the service changes for Metrobus and TheBus would happen together and is hoping more information regarding TheBus service will come out this month.

Councilmember Amy Knesel asked if Metrobus would allow students in the public schools to ride for free because they are able to do that on TheBus #11. Jones replied, “... that is an effort that still needs to be worked through.”

Councilmember Kristen Weaver wanted to know if someone comes out and physically looks at the situation on the ground because she can see that Westway is a steep hill and understands the visibility concerns of residents. Jones said that in this case there were visits and buses were driven along the route but that the WMATA Bus Transportation Safety staff did not raise any similar concerns.

APB View

Ben Friedman, chair of the city’s Advisory Planning Board (APB), said the board did support building two new bus stops but also said the charge given to APB concerned whether or not to put in the bus stops and not on the route change. However, they did hear concerns from the community regarding routing buses along Westway.

GHI Concerns

Stefan Brodd, president of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI), strongly opposed the new routes and felt they decrease pedestrian safety along Westway. There are parked cars along either side of Westway with dense shrubs that obstruct drivers’ views. Furthermore, there are no sidewalks along Westway so residents use the road to walk between Ridge and Crescent. GHI “... is very concerned that we are setting up ourselves for a tragic accident.” There is a mid-block pedestrian crossing not easily seen by vehicles on Westway. The crossing connects the main sidewalk in the west end to the center of town.

Resident Concerns

Several Greenbelt residents provided their thoughts on the route changes. Richard Shumaker, a resident on Westway, spoke to the human element of the situation. He stated that there are four disabled residents and a blind person who live along that street. They have mobility issues and the addition of Metrobuses going up and down the street endangers their safety, said Shumaker. Jim Drake suggested that one solution would be to put in a sidewalk along the length of Westway so residents would not have to walk in the street.

After much discussion on the feasibility of sidewalks along Westway and the use of the walking paths in Greenbelt, Weaver moved to not approve construction of the two new bus stops. The motion passed unanimously, which means the bus routes within Greenbelt will not change.

Mayor Emmett Jordan recognized that the rules for how ARPA funds could be spent have changed and asked what the implications are for shifting positions from the general fund to ARPA funds. Salmerón said that for FY 2026 it provided relief from having to use general funds but that for FY 2027 the city would need to plan to pay for those positions using general funds. Regarding ARPA funds Salmerón said the city is doing everything by the books and is prepared to be audited.

Budget Process

Council discussed but took no action on Councilmember Danielle McKinney’s recommendations aimed at making the upcoming budget worksessions more efficient and productive. She had several recommendations including having council submit questions to staff two days prior to the worksession, convene a town hall specifically on the budget to allow for more public input, have members of the public submit questions prior to the worksession and allow members of the public up to two (2) opportunities to comment or ask questions during each work-session.

Jordan liked the idea of having a town hall on a Saturday and felt that perhaps a longer session on a Saturday would allow for more business to be completed. He also noted that a town hall would require staff to develop a different type of presentation.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts did not agree with limiting the public’s input during a worksession and believed that not many members of the public would attend a Saturday session.

Councilmembers Silke Pope and Kristen Weaver liked the idea of submitting council questions two days prior to the meeting but Pompei felt that not everyone would be able to meet such a deadline. She also liked the idea of a Saturday town hall. As far as the public asking questions during the session, she thought about maybe having them at the end of the meeting.

Resident and former mayor J Davis noted that every time there is a budget session folks complain and each time, council tries to change it. Council has tried before to submit questions prior to the worksession and found that some members are good at turning in questions and others are not, she said. She felt that the questions from council are much more numerous during the discussion than the number of questions submitted beforehand. She also noted that limiting public input during a session sends a message that you are biased against those who actually took the time to read the material and ask questions.

No action was taken on the recommendations and the session ended with Jordan saying that it needs to be worked out, but “... that we can’t work it out right now at 20 minutes before midnight.”

First Worksession on FY26 Budget Shares Outlook for Revenue, Costs

by Erik Hanson

On Wednesday night, March 26, the Greenbelt City Council held the first of several worksessions on the Fiscal Year (FY) 2026 (July 1, 2025 to June 30, 2026) city budget. The proposed budget, presented at the March 24 council meeting, is $52.53 million, with $40 million in the general fund, $7.5 million in capital projects and $5 million in other funds (for more on the budget presentation at the March 24 meeting see page 1). Wednesday’s worksession covered revenue, administrative services, support services, nondepartmental funds and fund transfers.

Property Tax

City Manager Josué Salmerón noted that while the property tax rate of 8.275 percent has not increased in seven years, some property owners might see increased property tax bills due to an increase in the assessed value of their property.

Salaries

Salmerón noted there were increases in personnel costs due to a 2 percent cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) and a 3 percent increase in merit pay.

Election

There will be a local election on November 4; so historical costs for that are budgeted as well as an increase for voter engagement efforts, including outreach to noncitizen voters.

Armory

A total of $27,900 has been budgeted for utilities and light maintenance at the Armory. Salmerón noted that the best way to reduce vandalism at the site is to have activity there, such as the ongoing composting work taking place there. Salmerón noted that at council’s direction his staff will supply three publicly-vetted concepts for the use of the armory site.

Finance Report

City Treasurer Bertha Gaymon reported on support services of Finance, Human Resources (HR) and information technology (IT). Costs for the Finance office were basically flat as the increases in salaries were offset by a savings in eliminating the old accounting system. Human Resources saw an increase due to the purchase of Paycor, a new human resources system.

PIO Report

Public Information Officer Chondria Andrews noted that her department saw small budgetary increases due to postage and salary increases. This year they updated microphones in the city council chambers, placed an ad for Greenbelt in the Prince George’s County tourism brochure and worked on the city’s new website, which should be ready on or before June 30.

Economic Development

The budget for the city’s Department of Economic Development was basically flat according to John Mason, the department’s head. Mason noted that his department had entered 850 businesses into Salesforce, a Customer Relationship Management program used to track business retention and expansion. They have also used Environmental Systems Research Institute’s geographic information system (GIS) software to create graphics and a new system that will be able to show available Greenbelt commercial properties on the Greenbelt website.

The council, city manager and finance manager went on to discuss nondepartmental funds, fund transfers, replacement funds and the process of getting a bond rating. A town hall on the budget will be held in early May.

U.S. Education Dept. Funding Withdrawal Impacts PGCPs

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

The withdrawal of funds by the U.S. Department of Education jeopardizes some $418 million for school districts across Maryland. Of those districts, Prince George’s County Public School (PGCPS) is among the four in the state that would be most affected, stated Superintendent Millard House II in a letter to the community on Tuesday, April 1. The U.S. Department of Education announced the move in a letter 5 p.m. on Friday, March 28, which stated they are rescinding previously approved Covid recovery funds effective immediately. House described the move as “unexpected” and one that will “take back reimbursements for pandemic recovery funds that were expected to be available through January 2026.”

The impacted funds may include money spent but not yet reimbursed and money already encumbered. Thus it imperils planned projects and procurements and also those already underway. House said PGCPS is still reviewing the impact on their schools but must freeze any remaining spending tied to the funds.

Among the affected programs underway are construction, teacher training and mental health services, House noted. “These funds have supported key services for students, including mental health care, vaccines, technology, building upgrades, teacher training and programs to help students recover from the effects of the pandemic,” stated House.

In addition, PGCPS has made payments and is required to pay for goods and services they’ve already received, though they proceeded with the understanding they would be reimbursed by the federal funds. That promise of reimbursement is now retracted. “This reversal creates serious financial challenges and threatens important supports for our students,” said House. “We are urging the U.S. Department of Education to uphold its commitment while working closely with the Maryland State Department of Education to determine next steps,” he said. “At the same time, our team is thoroughly reviewing the financial and programmatic impact and exploring every available option to navigate the challenges ahead,” wrote House.

Springhill Lake Students Enjoy Field Trip with Refuge Staff

Third-grade students from Springhill Lake Elementary School took a walking field trip to Springhill Lake Recreation Center over three days in March to take part in activities organized by Greenbelt Recreation Arts in partnership with the Patuxent Research Refuge. Each class created nature-themed collages with art instructor Caitlyn McGillen, and also tried fishing and archery and went on a nature walk with rangers and volunteers from the Refuge. One of the teachers reported, “I have heard a lot of excited students as they returned from their trip sharing how much fun they had, how many fish they caught and how satisfying it was to rip paper.”

Krauk said when asked how it feels to see her daughter reach this level. “You kind of find it normal,” Fiona added. “It’s been normalized,” agreed Krauk. “But we are still so proud of you.”

Fiona’s gymnastics journey began almost as soon as she could walk. “I was just a baby,” Fiona said. Krauk recalled finding a tiny Fiona climbing furniture and leaping off the back of their couch. It wasn’t long before they decided, “We’ve got to get this kid into some sort of activity.” A mommy-and-me class quickly revealed Fiona’s natural affinity for gymnastics, and she hasn’t stopped since.

Fiona began with artistic gymnastics but discovered and transitioned to acrobatic after taking an injury leave. “I had no idea what acrobatic gymnastics was at first,” she said. “I thought of aerial silks and front walkovers, and that’s what a lot of people think it is.” But acro, as the sport is often called, trades our typical notion of gymnastics, with its beams and bars, for partner-based, choreographed routines performed entirely on the floor – often involving jaw-dropping balances, flips and throws. “In acro, artistry really matters,” Fiona said. “It should get more recognition.” Anyone who’s ever seen a routine would be quick to agree.

Fiona trains five to six days a week, logging around 22 hours in the gym and often doing intense conditioning work. She said that she finds training to be the hardest part of the whole competition cycle – along with the early mornings.

Fiona competes as the top in a women’s trio – the gymnast who is lifted, balanced and thrown – alongside two bases, who are typically older and taller. The group-based nature of acrobatic gymnastics adds a layer of complexity and requires constant coordination, trust and chemistry between partners. “Artistic [gymnastics] is an individual sport.

You’re with your team, but when you’re out on that beam, if you fall or if you hit, it’s all you,” said Krauk. “[Acrobatic] is different. It’s not like a team sport where they can just sub somebody in. You make or break with your group.”

Come summer, after Nationals, Fiona’s current trio will break up as one of her bases heads to college. To requalify for the national team, she’ll need to form a new group and try out again. It’s a reality of the sport that Fiona is already familiar with – and one she’s prepared to face.

But despite the pressures of elite competition, Fiona is still very much a teenager. “I love to sleep in,” she said with a laugh in response to what she does when she has a day off. With most days packed with school and hours of practice, she treasures her free time. “I don’t get a lot of down time so when I can just do nothing, it’s really nice.” So on those slower days, she enjoys hanging out with her friends, jumping on her trampoline or watching a movie.

While Fiona might not know what the future looks like in terms of her gymnastics career, she does know that she wants to keep going. With her sights set high and her feet (sometimes) in the air, she’s not planning on slowing down.
